The Robotics Challenge

Last month, my classmates and I signed up (1) ..... the National Robotics Challenge. None of us had (2) ..... experience with machines, so our teacher, Mr Tan, offered to coach us after school. In the first training session, we learnt (3) ..... to fit the motors and wheels together. Each team also received a booklet of rules. The robots (4) ..... tested on a track marked with black lines, and the fastest three would qualify for the finals.

At first, our robot kept turning in circles (5) ..... of following the line. We did not stop checking the sensors (6) ..... we finally found the loose wire. The competition was only two weeks away, (7) ..... we stayed back every afternoon to practise. Mr Tan reminded us that winning mattered far (8) ..... than learning from our mistakes. On the day itself, our robot completed the course faster than we (9) ..... expected. We did not win the top prize, but we were proud of (10) ..... we had achieved together.
